Collection Overview

The papers of Moses Hazeltine Sherman include materials he retained dating from 1869 school until his death in 1932. The earliest papers include a personal journal and materials from Sherman's schooling at the Oswego Normal School in New York. For the period 1874 to 1890, when Sherman resided in the Arizona Territory, the collection includes papers relating to teaching in Prescott, his appointments as Superintendent of Public Instruction and Adjutant General, and his business concerns, including real estate, mining and stock raising. After 1890, when Sherman moved to Los Angeles, the collection covers a variety of business and personal subjects including the development of the Los Angeles Pacific Railway, the subdivision of the San Fernando Valley, management of the Tejon Ranch and the Colorado River Land Company, the development of Hollywoodland, and the Los Angeles Steamship Company. The collection includes extensive correspondence, including substantial exchanges with Harry Chandler, Robert C. Gillis, and Otto F. Brant.

Biographical Note

Moses Hazeltine Sherman (1853-1932)

Early Life, 1853-1873

Moses Hazeltine Sherman was born in West Rupert, Vermont on December 3, 1853. He spent his early years divided between the family farm in West Rupert and living with relatives in Salem, New York, six miles away. His father sometimes taught school, in addition to farming, so Sherman was following his father's lead when in 1869 he entered the Oswego Normal School to train as a teacher.

Sherman left Oswego before completing his studies, in 1871, to take his first teaching job in Wisconsin, but by 1873 returned to complete his course of study at Oswego. From 1873 and 1874, he served as the principal of Hamilton (New York) Union Grade School. However, he became ill in 1874, with what doctors thought was tuberculosis. A standard treatment at the time was to move to a warmer climate, so when the city of Prescott in the Arizona Territory needed a teacher, Sherman responded.

Arizona Period, 1874-1890

When Sherman arrived in 1875, Prescott was a frontier town of 2,000 people, dependent on nearby Fort Whipple for security. Sherman threw himself into the job of creating a first-class school. In little more than a year, he was able to convince Prescott voters to support a bond issue to replace the single-room schoolhouse with the Prescott Free Academy, a two-story brick building that included space for the Territorial government. Sherman's success was such that the governor appointed him Superintendent of Public Instruction for the Territory in 1879. Sherman was subsequently elected to the office and served as Superintendent until 1883. In that same year, the Governor appointed him Adjutant General of Arizona, a position responsible for the state militia. The post came with the honorary title "General," a moniker Sherman would use for the rest of his life.

Sherman's political career in Arizona ended with his term as Adjutant General in 1887. Even as he served in government, he pursued a career in business, investing in mining and real estate at first. By 1883, he became one of the founders of the Valley National Bank, initially serving as its president. He built and operated the Phoenix Street Railway and gained a controlling interest in the Phoenix Water Works. Sherman was also a major real estate developer, subdividing land in the Phoenix. When the capital moved to Phoenix, Sherman donated the land for the new capital building, which not coincidentally adjoined land he owned and hoped to sell. By the late 1880s, Sherman boasted that he paid more taxes than anybody else did in the Territory. By 1890, he decided to move to Los Angeles, to further his business empire.

California, 1890-1932

Railroad Enterprises

Sherman arrived in Los Angeles in 1890 having already developed a street railway in Phoenix. Los Angeles had many small street railways, mostly horse-drawn cars. Sherman began acquiring these railways to create the first electrified street railway, the Los Angeles Consolidated Electric Railway. He built an extensive rail network in the heart of Los Angeles. Sherman faced determined competition from the Los Angeles Cable Railway. He ultimately forced the Cable Railway to merge with his company, but the fight was costly. By 1895, the Los Angeles Consolidated Electric could not meet its obligation to the company's bondholders. In 1897, a group of bondholders, led by Henry Huntington, acquired the company. Sherman was undeterred, abandoning the street railway to develop intercity lines stretching east to Pasadena and west to the ocean.

In 1895, Sherman began work on the first interurban rail line in Southern California – the Pasadena Pacific Railway. This railway was the first step in a plan to lay rails west, through what is now Hollywood and on to Santa Monica and the south along the coast. The culmination of this work was the Los Angeles Pacific Railway (LAP). The Los Angeles Pacific was more than just a means of moving people and goods. Sherman recognized the value of the railway in promoting the region in general and in selling land that he owned in particular. Sherman and his brother-in-law E. P. Clark were partners in both the Los Angeles Pacific and in land development. The two men had significant land holdings in Hollywood, what is now the west side of Los Angeles and Playa del Rey – all accessible from the LAP.

In 1908, Sherman struck a deal with the Southern Pacific Railroad to sell a majority stake in his company. He and E. P. Clark remained in charge of day-to-day management. Then in 1911, the Southern Pacific forced the Great Merger, buying outright the Los Angeles Pacific and Henry Huntington’s interurban lines to form the Pacific Electric “Red Car” system. From 1911 onward, Sherman began to focus on the development of land holdings, including the subdivision of the San Fernando Valley, the development of a vast ranch in the Mexicali Valley and the Tejon Ranch.

Board of Water Commissioners

Sherman served on the Board of Water Commissioners for the City of Los Angeles from 1903-1910. During those years, he and his fellow commissioners worked with William Mulholland to bring water to the city from the Owens Valley via the 200-mile Los Angeles Aqueduct. In 1910, Sherman was forced to resign from the Commission when his political opponents charged him with conflict of interest because he was a partial owner of the building in which the Commission rented space.

Real Estate Enterprises

In 1910, Sherman, Harrison Gray Otis, Harry Chandler, Otto F. Brant, and Hobart J. Whitley bought 47,500 acres of the San Fernando Valley for $2.5 million from Isaac Van Nuys. The group formed the Los Angeles Suburban Homes Company, selling 30 shares to fellow investors, but retaining leadership of the company as the Board of Control. Over the next several years, the Company created three new communities: Van Nuys, Owensmouth (now Canoga Park) and Marion (now Reseda). The company sold other sections of the huge tract of land to shareholders at a discounted price. One such tract of 1,000 acres became “Sherman’s Ranch.” In 1927, Sherman entered an agreement with real estate promoters Thomas Bundy and Charles Albright to create a new community, named Sherman Oaks.

Even as Sherman, Chandler and Otis were subdividing the southern half of the San Fernando Valley, they sought additional land holdings. In 1912, the group purchased the 275,000-acre Tejon Ranch for $3 million. Sherman and his partners raised cattle and sheep on the ranch, leased land to farmers and benefited from the discovery of oil on the ranch. In 1936, the ranch incorporated as the Tejon Ranch Company. Tejon Ranch remains the largest single privately held property in California.

In 1903, Harrison Gray Otis and a group of investors began buying land in Imperial Valley and northern Mexico to form the Colorado River Land Company (CRLC). While Sherman was not an initial investor, by the 1920s was one of the principle investors in CRLC. The Company owned over 840,000 acres of land in the Imperial and Mexicali Valleys including much of the delta of the Colorado River. Irrigation canals operated by the Company controlled water entering Northern Mexico and the Imperial Valley in the United States. While the Company initially focused on raising cattle, eventually growing cotton became the Company's principle business. The company also leased land to farmers.

In 1922, Sherman organized the Hollywoodland syndicate to subdivide a section of the Hollywood hills, which he and his brother-in-law E. P. Clark owned. Sherman and Clark joined with Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, and developers Tracey Shoults and Sydney H. Woodruff to create the Hollywoodland subdivision. While the business venture had limited success, it resulted in one of the world's iconic symbols – the Hollywood sign.

Personal Life

During his time in Arizona, Sherman married Henrietta "Hattie" Pratt and the couple had two daughters, Hazeltine and Lucy. When Sherman moved to Los Angeles in 1890, he and his wife separated. Hattie, Hazeltine and Lucy eventually moved to a home in San Francisco. Sherman lived for many years in the Westminster Hotel in downtown Los Angeles. The couple divorced in 1907. Sherman remained close to his daughters, establishing trusts to support them after his death. He never remarried.

Sherman's circle of friends were his business associates and their families. He was particularly close with Harry Chandler, whom he often addressed as "HC." The two would often play dominoes on Sunday evenings. He was also close to his brother-in-law E. P. Clark and developer R. C. Gillis. These men and other friends would retreat to Tejon Ranch or into Mexico for extended camping trips to escape the pressures of business.

Sherman also regularly attended the Bohemian Grove “jinks,” a gathering of influential men in the Northern California sequoias.

In the final years of his life, Sherman suffered a growing number of health problems. Arnold Haskell took over most of the day-to-day management of Sherman’s businesses by the mid-1920s. In failing health, Sherman moved to a home on Bay Island, in Newport Harbor. On September 9, 1932, “The General” passed away at the age of 78.

I. Journals, 1869 - ca. 1875

This series includes two volumes. The first of these is a journal started by Sherman on January 1, 1869, with daily entries continuing through February 5, 1869. Sherman also wrote entries for August 19 and 21, 1870 to record conversations with his terminally ill mother. An entry for September 9, 1870 records his mother's death. This volume also contains a short essay on the questions of whether women are intellectually inferior to men (Sherman disagreed), school and lectures notes, and a list of money "paid out."

The second volume consists chiefly of lecture notes, but also includes an entry written during a trip to San Francisco in which Sherman recalls being in Chicago on the evening the Great Fire erupted.

C. Mining Claims and Investments, 1881-1883

This series consists of records relating to mining and mining investments made by M. H. Sherman. The files include a deed for the Lone Jupiter extension of the Silver Prince Mine, and several notices of location of mines. A file with an agreement with N. L Griffin and T. M. Alexander documents Sherman's acquisition of a partial interest in the Iron Chief Min, Pasha Mine, Balsam Gold and Silver Mine and the Agua Fria Mine.

D. Ranches and Stock Raising, 1880-1900

This series relates primarily to the Empire Stock Farm and the Hardenberg Cattle Company. The files for the Empire Stock Ranch relate to Sherman's purchase of the property in 1880 and sale in 1882. M. H. Sherman was also a partner in the Hardenberg Cattle Company. The files relating to the Hardenberg Cattle Co. include M. H. Sherman's stock certificate for the company and record of a loan made by J.M. Ward to M. H. Sherman to fund the purchase of the Sun Flower Cattle Range. An Abstract of Record for Ward v. Sherman and Hardenberg relates to the Hardenberg Cattle Company's purchase of the Sun Flower Cattle Range and its subsequent return to John M. Ward. The United States Supreme Court eventually took up this case.

VII. Los Angeles Pacific Railway Files, 1899-1906

This series consists primarily of loans established by M. H. Sherman on behalf of the Los Angeles Pacific Railway. The majority of these loans originated in 1904 and 1905 and used Los Angeles Pacific Railway bonds as collateral. The records also include mortgages, tax assessments, and bond purchase and sale information. Finally, the series includes a printed copy of a Deed of Trust between the Los Angeles Pacific Railway and the Union Trust Company of San Francisco. Through this Deed of Trust the Union Trust extended a first mortgage on all Los Angeles Pacific assets in return for issuing $12,500,000 in bonds. It was through this mechanism that Edward H. Harriman gained control of the Los Angeles Pacific Railway.

VIII. General Subject Files, 1887-1931

The series includes files covering a wide range of topics including investments, real estate deals, gift giving, family history, and personal mementos. The files include correspondence, financial statements, address lists, newspaper clippings, legal documents and reports. The bulk of the series relate to companies in which M. H. Sherman invested.

Notable among these files are those for the Bank of Owensmouth, the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company, Compañía Industrial Jabonera del Pacifico, First Central Bank of Calexico and the Signal Mountain Land and Cattle Company.

The files for the Bank of Owensmouth, which was established in 1917 when Owensmouth (later Canoga Park) was annexed into the City of Los Angeles, includes statements of condition, lists of borrowers, and information on the bank's purchase by California Bank.

The file for the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company includes correspondence with the Southern Pacific Railroad regarding cost sharing for the 1906 repair of the Encino Canal along the Colorado River in Northern Mexico by the California Mexico Land and Cattle Company, which also safeguarded Southern Pacific property. The file also includes an option for M. H. Sherman to buy the company for $16 million dollars and paperwork on the guarantee of a loan to Col. Esteban Cantu.

The Compañía Industrial Jabonera del Pacifico file includes documents on the founding of the company and detailed stockholder reports and correspondence from Juan Brittingham, president of the Compañía. The Campania had a close relationship with the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company, which supplied cottonseed for ginning and the production of soap.

The file for the First Central Bank of Calexico includes correspondence with the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles regarding First Central Bank's condition and a proposal to consolidate with the Farmers and Merchants Bank El Centro Branch.

The files for the Signal Mountain Land and Cattle Company document this land syndicate with holdings in the Mexicali Valley. Among these are files for leased land to cotton growers, many of them of Chinese ancestry.

XI. Correspondence

A. Letters Received, 1874-1890

This series consists primarily of letters, but also includes invitations, advertisements, and bills, received by M. H. Sherman when he resided in Prescott, Arizona. The earliest letters, from 1870 through roughly 1875, are principally from family members, school friends, and former students at Hamilton Union School. Letters dated after 1875 increasingly shift from family matters to school administration and M. H. Sherman's business interests and his work as Superintendent of Public Instruction and Adjutant General. Notable correspondence letters include A. P. G. Safford, Territorial Governor, E. P. Clarke, Territorial Treasurer and Sherman's brother-in-law, C. C. and Frank Miller, proprietors of the Glenwood Inn in Riverside, CA, and Mark L Sheldon, cashier of the Salem National Bank. The series also includes two notable invitations: an 1875 invitation and program for a Soiree Musicale at the new Fort Whipple Post Hospital and an invitation to the Complementary Ball to the 11th Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Arizona.

XI. Correspondence

B. Letters Sent

1. Letter Books, 1888-1929

This series consists of 23 letter books primarily containing copies of letters sent by M. H. Sherman to business associates, family, and friends. The letters are generally typewritten, often with Sherman's signature and a post salutation note. A limited number of the letters were written on Sherman's behalf by his employees. The books include a few copies of incoming correspondence, primarily to document financial transactions. The letters contained in these books are arranged in rough chronological order. Many of the letters are annotated with the page number of the previous letter from the letters addressee.

The subjects of these letters cover the full range of Sherman's business activities, participation in politics, social life, and family matters. Among the most frequent subjects are the financing and development of Sherman's railway lines, including the Phoenix Street Railway, the Los Angeles Consolidated Electric Railway, the Los Angeles and Pasadena Electric Railway, and the Los Angeles Pacific Railway. In the post-World War I period, Sherman also wrote often regarding the Los Angeles Steamship Company. The purchase, sale, maintenance and subdivision of land is another frequent subject of Sherman's letters. These land projects include the subdivision of the southern half of the San Fernando Valley through the Los Angeles Suburban Homes Company, including the creation of Sherman Oaks, the Colorado River Land Company, Tejon Ranch, Playa del Rey, and the Hollywoodland development. Many letters reflect Sherman's interest in Republican politics.

Among his business colleagues Sherman frequently wrote to were Harrison Gray Otis and Harry Chandler, both associated with the Los Angeles Times; Otto F. Brant, one of the founders and the president of the Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles; E. P. Clark, Sherman's brother-in-law and business partner; Ralph J. Chandler, nephew of Harry Chandler and a founder of the Los Angeles Steamship Company; J. A. Graves, president of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles; Frank Miller, the proprietor of the Glenwood Mission Inn in Riverside, Calif.; and R. C. Gillis, president of the Santa Monica Land and Water Company.

Some of Sherman's most frequent correspondents include men associated with railroads, including W. H. Brewer, assistant to the general manager of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Ry.; George L. Bubbee, auditor of the Los Angeles Pacific Railway; E. E. Calvin, vice president, Southern Pacific Railroad; Walter Dillingham, president of the Oaju Railway and Land Co.; S. H. Mitchell, manager of the Phoenix Street Railway; H. V. Platt, general superintendent of the Southern Pacific Railroad; Epes Randolph, president of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico and Arizona Eastern Railway; Charles B. Segar, chief auditor of the Southern Pacific Railroad; and Paul Shoup, vice president, Southern Pacific Railroad.

Other frequent correspondents include J. C. Allison, chief engineer for the California Development Company and the owner of Delta Canal Company, S.A. and Compañía de Terrenos Delta, S.C.P.; R. B. Armstrong, an agent for the Los Angeles Times in Washington, D. C.; L. H. Chalmers, an attorney who represented Sherman's Arizona interests; H. H. Clark, the manager of the C-M Ranch in Imperial County; George Cochran, president of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company; R. P. Davie, a Los Angeles land developer; Arthur H. Fleming of the Wilmington Transportation Company; James N. Gillett, governor of California; Arnold Haskell; E. R. Jones, an executive with Wells Fargo & Company; Eldridge M. Lyon, an orange grower in Redlands, Calif.; George W. Scott, vice president of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company; J. M. Edmunds and Dan Leonard of the First National Bank of Calexico; and Mark L. Sheldon, president of the Salem National Bank, New York.

4. Carbon Copies of Letters Sent, 1916-1917

These carbon copies of letters sent date from roughly mid-1916 to the end of 1917. The letters are arranged in rough alphabetical order addressed to a great many individuals. The contents cover the range of business and social activities Sherman was engaged in at the time. Some of the letters also appear in the Letter Books, but most do not.

XI. Correspondence

C. Correspondence with Key Business Associates, 1914-1932

Starting in 1914, Sherman retained both incoming letters and copies of letters sent for a number of key business associates. These include T. J. Brown, manager of Tejon Ranch; Harry Chandler, manager and later publisher of the Los Angeles Times; Robert C. Gillis, a real estate developer and close business confidant; Arnold Haskell, Sherman's personal assistant; and S. F. Mitchell, who managed Sherman's Arizona business interest, including the operation of the Phoenix Railway Company.

The letters in this series cover a broad range of business and social activities. The Harry Chandler correspondence files include an almost daily correspondence between the two men touching on the broad range of business projects, including Tejon Ranch, the Colorado River Land Company, and the sale of San Fernando Valley property jointly owned by the two men. The correspondence also includes references to social affairs. Many of Chandler's letters forward third party materials for Sherman's reference. The files for Arnold Haskell document every aspect of Sherman's business operations. Haskell was Sherman's most trusted employee and associate, who managed much of Sherman's business concerns in the years before Sherman's death.

XI. Correspondence

D. Correspondence with Family

The first portion of this series (boxes 80-83) are photocopies from the Letter Books to family members, filed by correspondence. Most files are annotated with an explanation of the correspondent's relationship to Sherman. The balance of the series includes letter received from family members. The most frequent writer was Hazeltine Sherman Kever, Sherman's daughter. Most of the letters are undated and are currently unarranged.

NB: Until about 1883, Sherman maintained family letters with other correspondence. As a consequence, these letters can be found in the Letters Received series. After about 1883, Sherman maintained family letters separately from other correspondence.

XII. Fiscal Records

A. Income Tax Records, 1916-1934

This series includes tax forms, correspondence, and appraisals relating to Sherman's Federal taxes. The audit files include descriptions of Sherman's business transactions, and sometime providing extensive explanations of his business operations. A major subject is the value of land Sherman purchased before 1913. The Internal Revenue Service audits accused Sherman of overstating the value of his land in 1913 (the year the 16th Amendment to the Constitution was passed, authorizing income tax) to reduce his taxes. The series includes appraisal reports Sherman commissioned of his San Fernando Valley holdings and Clark and Sherman Land Company holdings to contest these ruling.

B. Stock and Bond Certificates, 1888-1909

Most of stock and bond certificates in this series include those for companies which Sherman founded or controlled, including the Phoenix Water Works, Valley Street Railroad, and the Phoenix Street Railroad. Other stock certificates were apparently given to Sherman as collateral on loans he extended to individuals. A single file contains records of the transfer of stock certificates.

D. Cancelled Checks, 1879-1932

This series includes cancelled checks from a variety of banks in which Sherman maintained accounts. In most cases, the cancelled checks were glued back into the original checkbook, which include stubs on which the payee and reason for the check were record. For the period prior to 1913, when Sherman did not keep detailed accounting records, these checks can be the best source of information about financial transactions.

XII. Fiscal Records

F. Ledger Books, 1889-1932

This series includes account register, check register, general ledgers and journal entries. The bulk of the materials date from 1913 when the creation of the income tax forced Sherman to keep detailed records of his financial transactions. The general ledgers and journal entries provide a detailed picture of Sherman's investments, income and expenses.
